THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 10th, 1887

The Louisville Republican has made its appearance.

The President has signed the Inter-State Commerce Bill.

The Public Debt was reduced $9,000,000 during January.

The President vetoed seven private pension bills Saturday.

Greenup county now has a Democratic newspaper, called the Greenup Herald.

Postal Notes have to be written payable at any money order office now.

It is said that the resignation of Treasurer Jordan and Secretary Manning are in the hands of the President.

The State Board of Equalization meets in the city of Frankfort, today. It will begin its labors immediately.

Col. Will S. Hayes, the veteran journalist and world famed song writer, has taken editorial charge of the Louisville News and Commercial.

Senator Hearst, of California, owns a newspaper which he says he never reads. His fortune is estimated at $40,000,000, but he probably does not know how much he is worth.

A terrible railroad accident occurred on the Central Vermont Railroad Saturday. Two passenger coaches and two sleeping cars left the track and plunged forty feet below into the White river. About sixty passengers were killed.

The Indiana Legislature at last elected Judge Turpie to succeed Senator Harrison in the Senate of the United States. The Labor Democrat, Robinson, voted on Thursday for Judge Turpie, thereby breaking the dead lock and giving the Democratic candidate the requisite number of votes.

The time has come when the orator is a thing of the past as moulder of public opinion. One newspaper of two thousand circulation has an audience of at least five thousand, and every paper is a calm dispassionate orator itself, which quietly gives the facts and arguments and leaves the masses to judge for themselves. This is the only way the masses can successfully be educated.—Morganfield Sun.

The next assembly should be composed of business men—men of middle age who have been tried and found faithful in financial matters, who know the value of a dollar, and who are in sympathy with the people upon all questions of public interest. As near as possible, too these men should be chosen from the non-professional, non-political classes. We have had too much fine talk, too much great genius, too many fine clothes; let us now have a little common sense.—Morganfield Sun.

The silly young woman, Miss Nina Van Zant who wants to marry August Spies, one of the condemned anarchists, should be permitted to do so if Spies is agreeable, (which is not doubted) and if after the urgent pleadings of her friends, to the contrary, she still desires to marry him. She also should be permitted to see him hang, which would so deeply impress upon her mind the degradation brought upon herself by her own willfulness that she would carry to her grave the recollection of an act which branded her one of the greatest fools of the nineteenth century.—Covington Enterprise.

Hon. T. D. Marcum, of Catlettsburg, seems to be the man the Democracy of Boyd and Lawrence counties have centered upon to go to the Legislature next winter. Mr. Marcum was Register of the Land Office for four years and has led a public life for many years. His thorough acquaintance in the two counties, his unbounded popularity, keen precept and open hand for both Democrats and Republicans, would insure his making a strong canvass and a candidate that could only be beat by main strength and awkwardness. It would be a great sacrifice for Capt. Marcum to make the race, on account of the necessary neglect of his business, but let that be as it may, the Republicans realize the fact that he is "loaded" and they don't care to tackle him.—Ashland Correspondent to Greenup Gazette.

There is a movement in Louisville looking to the putting of free books in the primary departments of the city schools. The proposition, whether adopted or not, is a very good one, and a very suggestive one.

The people of Kentucky have no greater burden than the annual purchase of school text books. The monopoly in school books is an open secret, and the exorbitant prices paid for very inferior primary works have sorely tried the patience of the people. For years the Legislature has been looked to, to give some relief in the premises, hope deferred, alone, has been the reward of the long, lonesome waiting.—Hartford Herald.

When people lose patience with a newspaper editor for some slight mistake which appears in print, they should remember that if they had a hundred items to look up and report in one week, they would be liable to get some of them not exactly right. Whoever heard gossip that would exactly coincide if told by two different persons? We do not mean to report gossip, but we may not hear the same piece of news just as you heard it, and it is probable that yours may be the right way and ours the wrong, especially if you know all the connections; but you must not blame an editor if after diligently inquiring of what he considers reliable authority, a mistake after all should be made. It is remarkable how little patience even patient people have with an editor's slip.—Webster Times.

The newspapers of the country are singing the praises of the new South. New industries are claiming attention. Mills, factories and foundries are dotting the hill-sides and the valleys and the busy hum of industry is heard on all sides. In this respect Kentucky needs badly to be made new. The vast coal fields of the State need to be developed, and the boundless forests to be stripped of their wealth. The spirit of improvement promises to spread, and "the grand old Commonwealth" shows signs of waking up. We need to be pried out of the "rut." We want more business and less politics, more work and less talk. We want railroads, which will cheapen fuel, open up new markets and cheapen the cost of transportation. With cheap coal will come manufactures and increased population. Kentucky is a grand old State, with many natural advantages, and the young men who don't want to "go West," but are willing to work, must have a chance. The opportunity is at home, and the need of the times is to make an opening for it. A new Kentucky must answer back cheerily to the new South and its busy and prosperous people—prosperous because busy, and busy by reason of developing their own resources.—Georgetown Times.

The selection of Frank Hiscock as Senator from New York is a pleasant surprise for those people who are interested in rescuing the Senate from the grasp of the millionaires. Hiscock, although he is in comfortable circumstances, was not chosen because of his money, but because he is an able and successful man. Miller, the man who was defeated, has no other recommendation except the possession of a large barrel of money. It is a standing menace, if not a disgrace, to the United States Senate that it has grown to be an assembly of millionaires. Large corporations and monopolies send their representatives to the Senate to influence legislation in their favor. A vote there is worth almost five votes in the House, and it is easier for money to carry a Congressional district. And so the Senate chamber has gotten filled up with bondholders. California sends a forty millionaire, whose chief road to fame is that he corrupted Legislatures in order to gain his fortune. Ohio sends a Senator whose distinction rests upon the fact that he is at the head of the most tremendous and most grinding monopoly on the continent. Almost every one of the great Pacific railroads has its men sitting in our House of Lords, and the silver mines of the West have a large and energetic delegation. Illinois has just sent in the gallant Logan's place a man known to fame by his money, and Indiana is trying to re-elect a lawyer who has fattened off the fees of monopolies. Under such a state of the case the defeat of any boodler man and an election based on merits comes as delightful relief.—Louisville Post.

The ordinary routine of life is often up hill work, and at our best we need all our health and strength to meet our daily trials. No one likes to be relegated to the dreary, uninteresting life of an invalid, and to a person afflicted with piles, such a remedy as Tabor's Buckeye Pile Ointment is invaluable.

OUR GRADE.

Our town has a grade. Not very well made. For the water ought to run under. But on Wednesday night it didn't go right, and tore our grade all to thunder.

The board of Trustees are all in a case. For they know the public don't like it. While the boys who dance would all like to prance. But they're afraid the police court would strike it.

Now what will we do For one more crew. To fix up the grade in condition? I'll tell you what: We'll let the thing rot. And all go down to perdition.

For each little man, You all understand, Is trying to grind his axe. You can't cross the street But some one you'll meet Who will ask you to please pay your taxes.

Circuit Court convenes Monday.

In a difficulty here last week Miles Diamond cut Frank Darnen several times.

Down south where playful breezes stray among the perpetual flowers, the good people do not enjoy an immunity from coughs, colds and diseases of throat and lungs, for which they find relief by using Coussens' Honey of Tar. This is the family remedy in that section as well as in the North, because of its undoubted virtues as a cough medicine. Just try it.

TRIAL AND FRIENDSHIP.—J. Monroe Taylor's Gold Medal Soda and Saleratus has had a trial among three million families, and is pronounced the best in the known world. Its use always brings a smile to the household; it keeps them in health; it makes the weak strong, and saves hundreds from that dreadful disease, dyspepsia. As you value health use it. Most of the Grocers sell it. Depot, 13 Water street, New York.

FREE TRADE.

The reduction of internal revenue and the taking of the revenue stamps from Proprietary Medicines, no doubt has largely benefited the consumers, as well as relieving the burden of "homo manufactures." Especially is this the case with Green's August Flower and Roscoe's German Syrup, as the reduction of thirty six cents per dozen, has been added to increase the size of the bottles containing these remedies, thereby giving one-fifth more medicine in the 75 cent size. The August Flower for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint, and the German Syrup for Cough and Lung troubles, have payable, the largest sale of any medicines in the world. The advantage of increased size of bottles will be greatly appreciated by the sick and afflicted, in every town and village in civilized countries. Sample bottles for 10 cents remain the same size.

accomplishes for every body exactly what is claimed for it. One of the reasons for the great popularity of the Mustang Liniment is found in its universal applicability. Every body needs such a medicine. The Lumberman needs it in case of accident. The Housewife needs it for general family use. The Cannibal needs it for his team and his men. The Mechanic needs it always on his work bench.

The Miner needs it in case of emergency. The Pioneer needs it—can't get along without it. The Farmer needs it in his house, his stable, and his stock yard.

The Steamboat man or the Boatman needs it in liberal supply aboard and ashore.

The Horse-fancier needs it—it is his best friend and safest reliance.

The Stock-grower needs it—it will save him thousands of dollars and a world of trouble.

The Railroad man needs it and will need it so long as his life is a round of accidents and dangers.

The Black-woman needs it. There is nothing like it as an antidote for the dangers to life, limb and comfort which surround the pioneer.

The Merchant needs it about his store among his employees. Accidents will happen, and when these come the Mustang Liniment is wanted at once. Keep a Bottle in the House. 'Tis the best of economy.

NEW YORK FASHION LETTER.

Velvet and Other Dresses—New Colors—A Return to Simplicity in Spring Costumes.

[Special Correspondence.] All the predictions with regard to velvet, both for costumes and their accessories, have been realized the present season. Wherever fashionable people have met at winter entertainments, there have appeared these most superb dresses, both in deep rich tones and in exquisite pale tints. Not always have these materials appeared in a complete dress, however, for just as there are coragages of velvet with skirts of lace, tulle, silk, or embroidered muslin, there are also coragages of net, lace or tulle, with skirts of velvet, with portions of the diaphanous fabric draping the skirt. Another popular alliance with velvet is the soft beautiful faille Francaise, this corded silk being made up in conjunction with velvet, in visiting and dinner gowns of exceeding richness. Black lace dresses preserve all their popularity, and will long continue to do so, for there is no prettier, more elegant, convenient or becoming toilet. Ladies who like change introduce variety by having drapings of striped transparent silk gauze, magnificently beaded tabliers or panels, or they produce a gay effect by the introduction of trails of exquisite French flowers upon skirt and corsage.

Sample cards of the new spring colors have arrived from abroad, and by these it will be seen that all shades of brown, from reddish and cream brown to seal and golden, will be highly popular once more. There are some uncommonly rich dyes in Normandy blue, several distinct shades of violet and holly-trope, and also in wine colors. All the sickly artistic hues are conspicuous by their absence, with the exception of the pale half-shades of apple, willow and frog-pool greens.

No. 1. These are hardly new, as in the early winter season they were thrust upon the trade with the assurance that these most trying tints would "take" in America, the land of the blonde and the home of the superlatively fair. Not so, however, thus far. Those artistic fabrics still find a refreshing and delicate vernal look to the show windows, but have fallen most noticeably short in favor of sale, either in dress fabrics or millinery uses. Gray, however, is triumphant, and all shades of this refined color, dear to the hearts of all French women, will be in high vogue next season.

A Nineteenth-century designer of high-class novelties, has among his early spring creations, a stylish gown modeled from a French dress of the fall.

French dress of the fall. Francaise combined with velvet of the new, deep but brilliant shade of Venetian red, a color now the rage in Paris. The pattern is illustrated above. The plain velvet underkirt is crested at the foot, the blocks faced underneath with satin of the ocre shade of the velvet. The tunic portion opens all the way down the front, showing the red velvet skirt beneath. The sides, however, are caught together at intervals with gray satin ribbon bows, and elaborate ornaments of silver and plumb beads.

No. 2. Walking Costume in Gray. bodice part is net velvet and Gray double breasted Wool Goods, but opens oddly in a V-shape notwithstanding, which space is closed with a plastron of red velvet. There is an embroidery of gray silk soutache beyond this plastron, with an ornament in bead-work as a finish. Epaullets of the beads adorn the shoulders, there is a crested giraffe at the belt, and a feature of the model is the plover's smock sleeve ending in a plaited silk cuff.

We have announced to us for the coming season a return to simplicity, relative simplicity, of course, which will relieve us of the weight of stuffs which now form an integral part of the toilet. There are promised fewer draperies, and above all, fewer voluminous draperies, and fewer different fabrics for the same dress. We are promised—skirts devoid of frilleries and such, even without any draperies whatever in the back, but simply hung in broad plaits, as witness model No. 2, also from the design of the one above referred to. With this skirt will be worn a deep over-drapery, hemmed or delicately embroidered or beaded, and draped across the front in easy, graceful folds. En suite is a Louis Quinze jacket with large double flaps at the side, a loop-back arranged in position and with Garrick shoulder capes, shaped to match the flaps on the jacket, which opens over an embroidered waistcoat, and is garnished on each side with large buttons of bronze and enamel. There is a rage in New York this winter for fancy sleighing boots of every sort. First come the Russian boots of seal, bordered with fur, then follow the English model of fur-lined satin, which are veritable protectors against the stinging pinches of Jack Frost. The Normandy toques is the most expensive, as it is made of sable or seal skin. This has a high peak on top and pulls down over the ears exactly like a man's cap.

FARMERS and dairymen must not place too much reliance in the oleomargarine law raising the price of butter. If better prices are to be had, they will be for good butter alone, for the day when carelessly-made and badly-kept butter will sell at a paying price has gone. In fact, nothing today helps the sale of oleomargarine so much as the presence of this poor dairy butter in our markets. Consumers want pure butter, but where they can not get it sweet and pleasant to the taste they will, of necessity, take oleomargarine.—N. & F. Farmer.

It well laid, a stone drain should last as long as one of tile. If a considerable amount of stone is used and there is a good outlet, a stone drain will never fill up as that some water will not pass through it. Too great a fall or too large an amount of water is apt to displace stones. Hence attempts to make the stone in the form of an arch often fail. One side or the other is liable to be displaced, and presently a stone is pushed into the channel. Each vacuum later around this and the efficiency of the drain is impaired. The set in a ditch just wide enough to receive it can not easily be displaced.—Western Rural.

THERE are few markets in which enough difference is made in price of hay on account of quality. Excepting those who feed fancy horses, few men are particular enough what they give their teams. Hay full of weeds and stained with soil sells within two or three dollars per ton as high as that which is bright and good. The higher price is generally the cheapest, even leaving out the comfort and the satisfaction of the stock eating it. There is only one exception to this rule. Clover hay is always low in price. Even when well cured it usually sells low. Much clover, however, is badly stained and often musty, as it is the kind of hay most difficult to cure well.—Chicago Tribune.

The advertisement of the old reliable establishment, The Storrs and Harrison Co., Fairville, Ohio, appears in this issue, offering flower and vegetable seeds, trees, plants, grape vines, fruit and ornamental trees. They are running one of the most complete nurseries in the world, and issue a large, attractive catalogue, which they will mail you free on application. They have no traveling agents, and are only responsible for orders sent direct. Give them a trial and save your commissions. They guarantee satisfaction.

When you swear off swearing off swearing at the same time, it never will be missed.—Philadelphia Call.

HOW often is the light of the household clouded by signs of melancholy or irritability on the part of the ladies. Yet they are not to be blamed, for they are the result of ailments peculiar to that sex, which men know not of. But the cause may be removed and joy restored by the use of Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," which, as a tonic and builder for debilitated women, is certain, safe and pleasant. It is beyond all compare the great healer of women.

LIFE is short, but it isn't half so short as some men are all through life.—N. Y. Independent.

"Consumption Cure" would be a truthful name to give to Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," the most efficacious medicine yet discovered for arresting the early development of pulmonary disease. But "consumption cure" would not sufficiently indicate the scope of its influence and usefulness. In all the many diseases which spring from a derangement of the liver and blood the "Discovery" is a safe and sure specific. Of all drugs.

Velvet and Other Dresses—New Colors—A Return to Simplicity in Spring Costumes.

[Special Correspondence.] All the predictions with regard to velvet, both for costumes and their accessories, have been realized the present season. Wherever fashionable people have met at gay winter entertainments, there have appeared these most superb dresses, both in deep rich tones and in exquisite pale tints. Not always have these materials appeared in a complete dress, however, for just as there are corsets of velvet with skirts of lace, tulle, silk tulle or embroidered muslin, there are also corsets of net, lace or Indian mull, with skirts of velvet, with portions of the diaphanous fabric draping the skirt. Another popular alliance with velvet is the soft beautiful flannel French, this corded silk being made up in conjunction with velvet, in visiting and dinner gowns of exceeding richness. Black lace dresses preserve all their popularity, and will long continue to do so, for there is no prettier, more elegant, convenient or becoming toilet. Ladies who like to introduce variety by having drapings of striped transparent silk gauze, magnificently beaded tabliers or panels, or they produce a gay effect by the introduction of trails of exquisite French flowers upon skirt and corsage.

Sample cards of the now spring colors have arrived from abroad, and by these it will be seen that all shades of brown, from reddish and cream brown to seal and golden, will be highly popular. There are some uncommonly rich dyes in Normandy blue, several distinct shades of violet and heliotrope, and also in wine colors. All the sickly artistic hues are conspicuous by their absence, with the exception of the pale half-shades of apple, willow and frog-pend greens. These are hardly new, as in the early winter season they were thrust upon the trade with the assurance that these most trying tints would "take" in America, the land of the blonde and the home of the superlatively fair. Not so, however, thus far. Those artistic fabrics still lend a new and delicate vernal look to the show windows, but have fallen most noticeably short in favor of a rich, either in dress fabrics or millinery uses. Gray, however, is triumphant, and all shades of this refined color, dear to the hearts of all French women, will be in high vogue next season.

A Nineteenth-street designer of high-class novelties, has among his early spring creations, a stylish gown modeled from a French dress of nuns' gray faille. This is combined with velvet of the now, deep but brilliant shade of Venetian red, a color now the rage in Paris. The pattern illustrated above. The plain velvet underskirt is creased at the foot, the black lace under-undershirt with satin of the exact shade of the velvet. The tunic portion opens all the way down the front, showing the red velvet skirt beneath. The sides, however, are caught together at intervals with gray satin ribbon bows, and elaborate ornaments of silver and gold beads. The walking costume in car-bodice part is not velvet and Gray double breasted wool goods. It opens oddly in a V-shape notwithstanding, which space is closed with a plastron of red velvet. There is an embroidery of gray silk soutache beyond this plastron, with an ornament in bead-work as a finish. Epaullets of the beads adorn the shoulders, there is a crenelated girdle at the belt, and a feature of the model is the plowman's smock sleeve ending in a pointed silk cuff.

We have announced to us for the coming season a return to simplicity, relative simplicity, of course, which will relieve us of part of the weight of stuffs which now form in most cases an integral part of the toilet. There are promised fewer draperies, and above all fewer voluminous ruffles, and a few different fabrics for the same dress. We are promised skirts devoid of flippers and such, even without any draperies whatever in the back, but simply hung in broad plaits, as witness model No. 2, also from the design of the one above referred to. With this skirt will be worn a deep over-drapery, hemmed or delicately embroidered or beaded, and draped across the front in easy, graceful folds. A suit is a Louis Quinze jacket with large double flaps at the side, a loop-back arranged en position and with Garrick shoulder capes, shaped to match the flaps on the jacket, which open over an embroidered waistcoat, and is garnished on each side with large buttons of bronze and enamel. There is a rage in New York this winter for fancy sleighing hoods of every sort. First come the Russian hoods of seal, bordered with fur, then follow the English model of fur-lined catin, which are veritable protectors against the stinging pinches of Jack Frost. The Normandy toque is the most expensive, as it is made of sable or seal skin. This has a high peak on top and pulls down over the ears exactly like a man's cap.

FARMERS and dairymen must not place too much reliance in the oleomargarine law raising the price of butter. If better prices are to be had, they will be for good butter alone, for the day when carelessly-made and badly-kept butter will sell at a paying price has gone. In fact, nothing today helps the sale of oleomargarine so much as the presence of this poor dairy butter in our markets. Consumers want pure butter, but where they can not get it, sweet and pleasant to the taste they will, of necessity, take oleomargarine.—N. E. Farmer.

If well laid, a stone drain should last as long as one of tile. If a considerable amount of stone is used and there is a good outlet, a stone drain will never fill up so that some water will not pass through it. Too great a fall or too large an amount of water is apt to displace stones. Hence attempts to make the stone in the form of an arch often fail. One side or the other is liable to be displaced, and presently a stone is pushed into the channel. Earth accumulates around this and the efficiency of the drain is impaired. The set in a ditch just wide enough to receive it can not easily be displaced.—Hort. Revue.

There are few markets in which enough difference is made in price of hay on account of quality. Excepting those who feed fancy horses, few men are particular enough what they give their tenants. Hay full of weeds and stained with soil sells within two or three dollars per ton as high as that which is bright and good. The higher price is generally the cheapest, even leaving out the comfort and the satisfaction of the stock eating it. There is only one exception to this rule. Clover hay is always low in price. Even when well cured it usually sells low. Much clover, however, is badly stained and often musty, as it is the kind of hay most difficult to cure well.—Chicago Tribune.

The advertisement of the old reliable establishment, The Storrs and Harrison Co., Painesville, Ohio, appears in this issue, offering power and vegetable seeds, roses, plants, grape vines, fruit and ornamental trees. They are running one of the most complete nurseries in the world, and issue a large, attractive catalogue which they will mail you free on application. They have no traveling agents, and are only responsible for orders sent direct. Give them a trial and save dealers' commissions. They guarantee satisfaction.

When you swear off swear off swearing at the same time, it never will be missed.—Philadelphia Call.

How often is the light of the household clouded by signs of melancholy or irritability on the part of the ladies. Yet they are not to be blamed, for they are the recipients of ailments peculiar to the female system. But the cause may be removed and joy restored by the use of Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," which, as a tonic and nervine for debilitated women, is certain, safe and pleasant. It is beyond all compare the great healer of women.

Life is short, but it isn't half so short as some men are all through life.—N. Y. Independent.

"Consumption Cure" would be a truthful name to give to Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," the most efficacious medicine yet discovered for arresting the early development of pulmonary disease. But "consumption cure" would not sufficiently indicate the scope of its influence and usefulness. In all the many diseases which spring from a derangement of the liver and blood the "consumption cure" is a safe and sure specific. Of all drugs.

Very young people show their age. The old ones know how to hide it.—N. O. Picayune.

A City of Beautiful Women. Detroit, Mich., is noted for its healthy, handsome ladies, which the leading physicians and druggists there attribute to the general use and popularity of Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic.

The lost cause—her better half's excuse for not coming home earlier.—Merchant Traveler.

There is no place like home, especially if it's the home of your best girl.—St. Paul Herald.

Sudden Changes of Weather are productive of Throat Diseases, Coughs, Colds, etc. There is no more effective relief in these diseases to be found than in the use of Brown's Bronchial Tonic.

She was a very pretty miss once, but marriage tamed her and she is an expert.—Merchant Traveler.

The ink-bottle is one of the most indispensable things known.—Merchant Traveler.
